

TOM POUCE

FRANCE

"I'm Ibtissem Ben Zid. I have three. My first Nana, is four years old and my second, Rihanna is one and a half. My youngest child, Enzo, is six months old.

I've been at Tom Pouce's home for almost five months. I am in this facility because I don't have housing anywhere else.

Tom Pouce has helped me to have structure; to know how to cook good food; to have confidence in myself; to take care of myself and my children. Most of all, I confident that I can create a stable framework for my family's future."

La Maison de Tom Pouce offers support and housing in Seine et Marne to young women who are pregnant and in vulnerable situations.

Through providing assistance during pregnancy, helping to take care of their baby and offering material and psychological support, La Maison de Tom Pouce is creating a safe space for women to give their children the best possible start in life.

There exists a proven interrelationship between single motherhood, homelessness and postpartum depression.

Society as a whole benefits when mothers are supported, informed and recognised.
